METLIFE FOUNDATION AND THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF AREA AGENCIES ON AGING HONOR OUTSTANDING OLDER VOLUNTEERS AT WASHINGTON, DC EVENT

The Older Volunteers Enrich America Awards Celebrate and Promote Volunteering Among Adults Over the Age of 50

Washington, DC – Today, the National Association of Area Agencies on Aging (n4a) announced recipients of the 2011 MetLife Foundation Older Volunteers Enrich America Awards. The program, now in its ninth year, honors the exemplary contributions of older volunteers and promotes volunteering among older adults nationwide. The award-winning volunteers, who range in age from 54 to 92 years, were in Washington, DC today to attend a ceremony in their honor.

Healthy communities engage the time, talent and best thinking of residents of all ages,” said Dennis White, president and CEO of MetLife Foundation. “We are pleased to join n4a in recognizing 26 older volunteers who are making a positive difference in their communities. They are an inspiration to people of all ages.”

The award winners, selected by a blue ribbon panel, are recognized in three categories: Community Champion, which honors those who use their time and talent to make their community a better place to live; Mentor, which recognizes older volunteers who are devoted to working with young people and their families; and Team Spirit, which pays tribute to older volunteers who assist other older adults.

The top award recipient in each category received recognition as a Gold Honoree:

Pendleton Woods, 87, of Oklahoma City, Oklahoma earned top recognition in the Community Champion category for his service with the Epilepsy Association.

Ida Odom, 89, of Chester, Pennsylvania earned top recognition in the Mentor category for her service with the Foster Grandparent Program of the Delaware County Office of Services for the Aging

LaVerne Gordon, 92, of Pleasant Hill, California earned top recognition in the Team Spirit category for her service with the Contra Costa County Area Agency on Aging's Tax-Aide program.

"The Older Volunteers Enrich America Award honorees have dedicated thousands and thousands of hours volunteering to help others and to strengthen their communities," said Sandy Markwood, CEO n4a. "We commend these men and women for their service and for setting the example of what is possible when we support each other. Volunteerism is an important part of life for retirees and there are so many opportunities to touch the lives of others in positive ways. We are grateful that MetLife Foundation makes it possible to recognize these honorees and hope that by doing so, other volunteers will follow in their footsteps."

In addition to the Gold Honorees, 23 individuals received recognition as Silver Honorees for their outstanding volunteer contributions:
