Former Head of White House Conference on Aging to Join National Association of Area Agencies on Aging

Washington, DC—Today, the National Association of Area Agencies on Aging’s (n4a) CEO Sandy Markwood announced that Nora Super, the Executive Director of the 2015 White House Conference on Aging (WHCoA), will join n4a on February 16 in the newly created role of Chief, Programs and Services.

Named Executive Director of the WHCoA in July 2014, Nora was given a mandate to maximize the Administration’s outreach and engagement with older Americans nationwide. She accomplished this major task by crisscrossing the country to meet with older adults, caregivers and other stakeholders involved in issues of importance to the aging community. Her efforts culminated in the holding of five regional forums and the July 2015 White House Conference on Aging, which attracted participation by thousands of average citizens, as well as aging professionals, including many from the Aging Network.

Nora’s background includes more than 20 years of experience working in Washington, DC on a wide range of aging and health care policy issues.

“Nora brings a depth and breadth of experience on issues affecting older Americans that will further strengthen the work n4a and the broader Aging Network have been undertaking for more than forty years,” said n4a CEO Sandy Markwood. “We are excited to welcome her to our team, where together, we will continue to boost the capacity of our members to help older adults live with dignity and independence in their homes and communities.”

About n4a

The National Association of Area Agencies on Aging (n4a) is a 501c(3) membership association representing America’s national network of 622 Area Agencies on Aging (AAAs) and providing a voice in the nation’s capital for the 246 Title VI Native American aging programs. The mission of n4a is to build the capacity of its members so they can better help older adults and people with disabilities live with dignity and choices in their homes and communities for as long as possible.
